MAIL AS USUAL THROUGH BOXES

Plans of Postmaster-General Make it Possible to Evade Sunday
Closing Law.

NEWSPAPERS ARE EXEMPT

Hotel Guests Will Also Get Their Mail as Formerly—Distribution Will be Simplified.

There seems to have been a general misunderstanding in regards to the closing of first and second class postoffices on Sunday as provided in the appropriation act recently passed by congress. Postmaster General Hitchcock has perfected plans whereby the administration of the new law prohibiting the delivery of mail on Sunday will have no serious effect upon the handling of important mail matter.

Local postoffice authorities have received no notice from the postmaster general but expect the official order any time. Under the ruling of Postmaster General Hitchcock holders of lock boxes at first and second class postoffices will have access to them as usual, although no mail deliveries will be made by carriers on the streets or at postoffice windows. Mail for hotel guests and newspapers will be delivered to them through their lock boxes by a simple arrangement of having that mail sorted on the railway mail cars before it reaches its destination.

Such mail will be regarded as "transit matter," and will be distributed immediately upon its arrival at the offices of destination, thus practically insuring a speedier delivery to the addresses than heretofore has been the case.

The order of Postmaster General Hitchcock is as follows:

"There appears to be some misapprehension as regards the provision in the postal bill relating to the delivery of mail on Sundays. This provision does not require the closing of postoffices on Sundays, which would be quite impossible, owing to the fact that the transit mail has to be sorted and also the mail collected in cities for dispatch to other destinations. To stop the movement of this mail would mean a serious clogging of the whole system of mail transportation and consequent inconvenience to the public.

"At present most of the mail received on Sunday for delivery by carriers Monday morning is worked after midnight on Sunday, and therefore the law will not affect this mail. It will be delivered as promptly as hitherto. Mail received up to midnight on Saturday for lock boxes will be distributed to the boxes and will be available to boxholders on Sunday, as usual.

"There is at present no street delivery of mail by letter carriers on Sunday, and therefore the law makes no change in this regard. In short, the only mail that will be affected, under a reasonable construction of the new law, is that received at the postoffices on Sunday and hitherto sorted on that day for distribution to lock boxes.

"As the purpose of the law, which was clearly enacted in the interest of employes is to reduce as far as practicable the amount of Sunday labor, the work of distributing Sunday mail to lock boxes will be limited to certain classes of mail that can not be held until Monday morning without serious inconvenience to the addressees.

"This mail will include that for the newspapers and hotel guests. The latter is peculiarly transient in character and should not be delayed. This mail, like the special delivery mail, Continued on Page 2.

MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT

Guarantors of Chautauqua Are Urged to Attend.

The directors of the Chautauqua Association met this morning and decided to hold a meeting next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the assembly room of the court house. At this meeting new officers will be elected and the report of the secretary and treasurer will be given. The association urges that all guarantors and those interested in the chautauqua attend this meeting.

FAMILY REUNIONS ARE NOW POPULAR

They Are Source of Much Genuine
Pleasure as They Bring Relatives Together.

IN A HAPPY FRAME OF MIND

Family reunions which are held in Rush county by the score during the latter part of the summer and beginning of fall, are becoming more popular every year. Almost every family has come to adopt the custom which has been practiced by some of the older families for a score or more of years.

Family reunions are the source of much genuine pleasure. They are the means of bringing relatives together once a year, who would probably not see each other in many years, otherwise. Then, too, they are all in a happy frame of mind, which adds much to the pleasure of these meetings. The different families elect officers from year to year to plan for the reunions and send out notices, and some write histories of their families, as nearly complete as possible, which are read at the annual gatherings, and are kept by the officers elected from year to year. This year many families held their first reunion, but are organizing for next year.

CHARLES BURCH DIES SUDDENLY

Chicago Man Succumbs From Heart

Attack in Law Offices of Hall and Campbell.

WAS DEALER IN MINING STOCK

Charles B. Burch of Chicago, age sixty years, was taken suddenly ill this afternoon about two o'clock in the law offices of Hall and Campbell in West Second street and died shortly after medical aid reached him.

Mr. Burch was a dealer in mining stock and had been in the city since one week ago last night. For the past few days he had complained of feeling badly and attributed it to an attack of indigestion. He was stricken while talking to Lieutenant Governor Frank J. Hall. Mr. Hall and Mr. Campbell removed the man to a bed in the rear room and summoned Dr. Dean.

The physician saw it was the man's heart and did all he could but he died in a few minutes. Not much is known of Mr. Burch's life. His wife is dead and his Chicago residence is the Lexington hotel. The coroner was called but the funeral services have not been completed.

WILL EXPLAIN TO DELEGATES

Plans For the Proposed Biederwolf
Evangelistic Campaign Will be Unfolded Sept. 3.

WILL BE HELD AT M. E. CHURCH

Conference is to Better Acquaint the People With Workings of Six Weeks Revival.

The simultaneous campaign of evangelism for Rush county, under the leadership of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, is now an assured fact. Rush county will be stirred from center to circumference, as never before. Dr. Biederwolf will be at Rushville for five full weeks, in a great tabernacle seating 3500 people. A strong evangelist with a good team of helpers will hold meetings in Milroy, Carthage and Morristown, for four weeks, beginning one week after the Rushville meeting starts. All of these towns will be known as "Red Centers," and each red center will care for its own territory.

During the last two weeks of the county campaign, union meetings will be held in every smaller town in the county where there are two or more churches, and in every single church, whether in town or country. At the close of the county campaign a two days' conservation conference will be held at Rushville, at which time the plans will be made for following up the work with a campaign of five weeks personal evangelism so that every man, woman and child in the county will be urged to take their place in the Sabbath school and the church and give themselves to Christ.

Dr. Biederwolf has asked the Rev. F. B. Stearns to take charge of this work outside of the city of Rushville and his plan will be that of organizing the county, first by townships and then by school districts. For this purpose, and for the purpose of making the details of the campaign clear to all a "delegate conference" is to be held in Rushville Tuesday, Sept. 3, at ten o'clock in the St. Paul M. E. church.

ASKS DIVORCE AND $5,000 ALIMONY

Mrs. Effie Pearl Short Demands Separation From Orbie Short—Alleges Cruel Treatment.

WANTS CUSTODY OF CHILD

Mrs. Effie Pearl Short today filed suit for divorce from Orbie J. Short. Mrs. Short demands $5000 alimony and the custody of their one child. The complaint alleges cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Short states that he frequently threatened her life and struck her. They were married in 1900 and separated August 26, only after she had succeeded in getting away from him, says the complaint.

Mrs. Short states that the defendant has real estate and personal property worth $15,000 and asks for $5000 and a reasonable amount for the support of her eleven-year-old daughter, Helen. McKee, Frost and Elliott of Connersville represent Mrs. Short.

WEATHER.

Thunder showers this afternoon and tonight. Warmer in east portion tonight. Thursday probably fair.

BELIEVE MOTHER IS INNOCENT

Four Daughters of Mrs. Alice Wolf
Have Indestructible Confidence
That She is Not Guilty.

THEY SAY STORY IS NO TRUE

Two Youngest Will be Taken to the Orphans' Home—Case Pending in Police Court.

The arrest of George Wolf and his wife, former local people, in Indianapolis on the charge of burglary, has thrown their four children on charity and the case is a hard one to solve. The Indianapolis News says:

Four children of Mrs. Alice Wolf, wife of George Wolf, arrested as an accomplice in her husband's burglaries, will be left without a home and are being cared for through the offices of the Indianapolis Humane Society as a result of the arrest of the Wolfs. The children's ages range from three years to seventeen. The Wolfs lived at 227 Dickson street, where according to the charge made by Wolf in his confession, his wife picked out houses for him to rob and urged him to steal more and more.

Mrs. Wolf was married three times before she married Wolf. The children are Nellie Long, who is seventeen years old; Elizabeth Long, fourteen years old; Madie Harmon, eleven years old, and Pauline Wolf, three years old.

Nellie and Elizabeth are employed, but their earnings are not sufficient to care for themselves and the two little ones. Nellie, whose devoted efforts to care for the others has won for her the admiration of neighbors since her mother's arrest, said she would like to keep the house and have the family remain together until her mother gets out of jail as she is confident she will. The four join in a big indestructible confidence that their mother is innocent of anything for which she should be put in jail. They can not understand why she should be arrested because Wolf told things about her that they say are not so.

The society workers, however, have convinced Nellie that it would be impossible to keep the house. The rent is due in a day or two and payments must be made on furniture purchased on the installment plan. Payments on it are already over due. Nellie and Elizabeth probably will be put in homes when they can support themselves, and the younger children will go to the orphans home temporarily at least. The parents' cases are pending in police court.

SHOT BEST WELL IN YEARS

Plenty of Gas on William Grocox
Farm.

What is said to be the best gas well shot in Rush county in five years was shot today by W. A. Mull on the William Grocox farm in Orange township. The well, according to Mr. Mull is a wonder and showed a wonderfully strong pressure. It is a private well.

Mrs. Kate Youse of Cleveland, who is visiting her brother, Elwood Ferguson and family in North Julian street, sustained a badly sprained ankle last week.

Miss Dove Meredith returned today from an extended visit at Three Lakes, Wis., where she was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas H. McConnell of Omaha, Neb.

CAME HERE TO GET MARRIED

Shelbyville Couple Wedded While Enroute to Laurel.

A marriage license was issued at the clerk's office Tuesday morning to Justus Vanatta and Miss Grace Ensinger and the couple left here immediately for Rushville, where the marriage license was to be solemnized, according to statements they made, after which they will go to Laurel to spend a few days with relatives of the bridegroom, who is a son of James Vanatta of that place, says the Shelbyville Democrat. He is twenty-three years old and has been employed on a farm in the northern part of Shelby county for some time.

UNION MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY

Churches of City Will Unite With Salvation Army in Respect For Gen. Booth.

PROGRAM IS ARRANGED

The churches of the city will unite with the Salvation Army and hold a memorial service Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the St. Paul M. E. church in honor of the late William Booth, founder of the Army. All the churches of the city will be represented at the meeting and an interesting program has been arranged.

Envoys Sparks of the Salvation Army in this city will be the first speaker. Will M. Sparks will give an address and Rev. C. M. Yocum will close. The memorial service will be observed all over the country. Gen. William Booth, the founder, died August 20 in England. The burial will take place tomorrow and the local post of the Army will hold special prayer services at the hall in South Pearl street.

WELL KNOWN MAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

William Pierson Passed Away After Illness of Two Weeks From Uraemic Poisoning.

BURIAL THURSDAY AFTERNOON

William J. Pierson, 41 years old, a well known farmer of this county, died yesterday afternoon about four o'clock at his home northeast of the city. Mr. Pierson had been ill about two weeks suffering from uraemic poisoning. His condition gradually became weaker and death was expected.

Mr. Pierson was born in Flint, Mich., March 1, 1871 and was the son of Herman Pierson. He had been a resident of this county for several years. Besides his widow he leaves two little daughters.

The funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Maria Smelser in West Third street by the Rev. J. B. Meacham. Burial will take place in East Hill cemetery.

BOARD IN SESSION.

The commissioners were in session today and received bids on several proposed roads. The auditor's office was crowded all day with contractors after the roads. At a late hour this afternoon no awards had been made. Several bridge contracts also were up for consideration.

PRICE WILL SOON KNOW HIS FATE

Murder Case at Greensburg Expected to go to Jury Late This Evening.

ARGUMENTS ARE MADE TODAY

Interest Increased as Trial Nears
End—Six Hours For Each Side.

Evidence in the Price trial at Greensburg was concluded last evening and the closing arguments were started this morning. Each side has six hours for argument. Ralph Spangh, for the State made the first address and was followed by Frank Hamilton for the defense. It is expected that the jury will get the case late this evening or early Thursday morning.

Price, pale, haggard and worried in appearance Tuesday morning and in the afternoon heard many character witnesses on the stand testify to the bad character of his relative, Ortho Deuton, who was with him on the morning of the killing on the little Jennings county farm, and who when cross examined testified as to the good character of the slain man. Deuton, according to witness on the stand today, was a man without character to speak of in a complimentary manner.

Interest in the trial is intense as it approaches a climax and all yesterday the court room was crowded. Attorneys on either side are digging deep into the relative merits of their case and are leaving no legal point untouched as to proving conclusively to the jury the guilt or innocence of the indicted defendant.

The second trial of Price has been marked all the way through by the speed with which it has progressed. The effort has been maintained to eliminate as much unnecessary evidence as possible and many character witnesses that were called to testify last April were not summoned on this occasion. Also will the argument and pleadings of the attorneys be much shorter this time than before. The counsel on each side has determined that six hours a piece is sufficient to present their claims, and from this fact the case will soon be ready for jury deliberation.

At 3:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon the State had closed its case and at twenty minutes until four o'clock the attorneys for the defense asked the court to dismiss until in the morning. This request was refused and the defense then rested. Judge Davidson granted each side six hours for argument and State's attorney, Ralph Spangh, made the opening address for the State.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.

A marriage license was issued today to George F. Whiting and Nellie May Barlow.

Ladies Aid Society of New Salem will give an ice cream festival next Saturday night.

PASSED MANY RAISED BILLS

Malatin Pasted an Extra Cipher On Tens.

DECEIVED EVEN THE BANKS

One of the Most Dangerous Counterfeiters in the Country Came to Grief at Hammond When a Raised Bill He Was Passing on a Saloon Keeper Exposed Its Weakness and He Now Is in Uncle Sam's Grasp.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 28.—The police have arrested Peter E. Malatin, a notorious counterfeiter, after a two years' chase had been made for him by federal officers. Malatin was turned over to Captain Porter of the secret service, at Chicago. Malatin raised $10 bills to $100 by clipping ciphers from $10 bills and pasting them on $10 bills. Malatin's work was so clever that Hegewich and Hammond banks were deceived. He gambled with two phoney $100 bills in West Hammond. He passed one bill on a Hammond saloon keeper, but as the latter rolled up the bill one of the pasted ciphers came loose and counterfeiting detection followed. In Detroit Malatin escaped a year ago by acting the idiot, and in Cleveland he broke away from the officer and escaped. He is regarded as the most dangerous counterfeiter at large. His "pal," Milos Manlich, is doing time at Leavenworth. When arrested Malatin had a large roll of phoney bills on his person.

HEARD REVOLVER

Man Played Deaf and Dumb Until Police Frightened Him.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 28.—On realizing his mistake of jumping when a revolver was exploded just behind him, Leslie Adams of Logansport, who represented himself to be deaf and dumb, grinned foolishly at police detectives. As a result, Adams, who says he is a member of a respectable Logansport family, must stand trial here on a charge of larceny by trick. The complaint against him is that he circulated a paper asking for subscriptions that he might complete his course in a bookkeeping school. The paper contained a statement from a certain preacher named C. W. Thomas, of Logansport, who recommended that every one give liberally to the young man. For three days young Adams was silent, pretending he could not hear or talk. The revolver experiment unnerved him to such an extent that he confessed. The police say there is no preacher named Thomas at Logansport, also that Adams collected more than $100 here "to finish his education."

Girl's Clothing Caught Fire.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 28.—Wrapped in flames and screaming for help, Miss Esther Smith narrowly escaped death on a motorcycle, and is dying at her home. She was riding with Roy Roberts, and as the machine had no rear seat she sat on the gasoline tank. A spark from the motor ignited gasoline which had been dripping from the tank, and the girl's clothing caught fire. When Roberts tried to help her his clothing began to burn. Passengers on an interurban car helped extinguish the flames and the two were hurried to their homes.

Oil Field Doing Well.

Portland, Ind., Aug. 28.—Well No. 3 on the Josch farm in Pike township, recently completed, has started off on the first day's pumping with an initial production of forty barrels a day. Two other wells on the same lease are holding up well, and confidence is felt in the stability of the new field. Preparations are being made for the sinking of the fourth well.

Room For All on This Platform.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and Governor Woodrow Wilson will be among the headliners at the annual conservation congress in Indianapolis, Oct. 1 to 4, if they accept invitations extended to them. William J. Bryan and other national leaders of the political parties may also be among the notable speakers.

Hundreds Were Horrified.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 28.—Stepping off of one streetcar into the path of another, Mrs. R. Lyle Kelley and two small children were dragged fifty feet and injured so badly that Mrs. Kelley and one of the children have little chance for recovery. The accident occurred in the downtown district and was witnessed by hundreds.

Record-Breaking Nut Crop.

Petersburg, Ind., Aug. 28.— Hickory trees in this vicinity are breaking down under the weight of the nuts. The crop will be the largest ever known here. There is also an abundance of walnuts and the pecan trees in the flats west of this city are well filled.

Victim of Snake Bite.

Brasil, Ind., Aug. 28.—Otto Stenerwald, a lumberman of Asherville, four miles south of Brasil, was bitten by a copperhead snake and is in a serious condition. Prompt treatment saved his life. The snake was killed.

WILLIAM BURKE

Philadelphia Councilman Who Gave Up Under Shadow of Past.

BURKE HAS RETURNED TO LIVE DOWN PAST

Latest Phase of Philadelphia's Nine Days' Wonder.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—William J. Burke, Philadelphia's reform councilman who disappeared on Aug. 16, after writing a confession that he is an ex-convict and second story worker, and resigning from the city councils, returned to the city and became reconciled to his wife and stepdaughter, who have been loyal to him through his troubles.

After greeting his family Burke immediately went to the home of John L. Fehr, the local business man who offered to set Burke up in the cigar business provided he would come back. Burke has taken charge of the cigar store.

Following his talk with Mr. Fehr, Burke told details of his downfall, and he gave the name of the former convict who by blackmail drove him from his position as a reform councilman to a back room in a lodging house in New York, where he has been hiding since his disappearance.

Political Managers Urge Registration.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—Active preparations are being made by the state political organizations for the next registration day, Sept. 6. The registration in May was light, and it is regarded as of great importance by all of the political managers that as many voters as possible be induced to register at the next period. Polls are being taken in various parts of the state. Voters who register are not compelled to state their party affiliations.

Druggists Aid Barnard.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, is receiving aid from many Indiana druggists in his campaign against what he terms "fake" prescription advertising in the newspapers.

FINDING A WAY TO EVADE LAW

Postoffice Will Get Around Rigorous Regulation.

BY LIBERAL INTERPRETATION

Postoffice Department Holds That the Framers of the New Sunday Closing Law Did Not Mean Quite All They Said and Will Let Down the Bars to Newspapers, Hotels and Certain Other Addressees.

Washington, Aug. 28.—After conferring with his chiefs, Postmaster General Hitchcock decided to interpret liberally the law passed by congress forbidding the delivery of mail to the general public on Sunday. The postmaster general will permit mail to be distributed to lock boxes for newspapers, hotel guests and other addressees who would be greatly inconvenienced by having their letters held up until Monday morning. He believes the intent of the law was merely to reduce to a minimum the number of postal clerks employed on Sunday, and he thinks this can be accomplished and still allow the delivery of mail in emergency cases.

The law will, however, prevent the general public from getting mail through lock boxes on Sunday and also will prevent the distribution of Sunday newspapers through the mail so as to be delivered before Monday.

The Congressional Record shows that the country is indebted to Jas. R. Mann, Republican leader in the house, for this Sunday closing law. Mr. Mann offered it as an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill. One of the curious things about this legislation is that special consideration was given to the farmer, and on his account the Sunday closing provision was not extended to third and fourth class postoffices.

MORE TROUBLE

Moreoccans Apparently Unable to Keep the Peace.

Tangier, Aug. 28.—Dispatches brought by runners from Megador describe Marrakeesh as being in a state of anarchy. The rioters are looting the European and native property impartially. Fighting between rival gangs of robbers and the townspeople is continuous. The big Jewish population is shut up in a ghetto in the most pitiable condition and without food. There is great anxiety for the safety of the French vice consul and his eight companions, who were turned over to the pretender, El Hiba, some days ago and are being held as hostages.

RAISED A ROAR

Proposal to Publish List of Gamblers' Landlords Aroused Protest.

New York, Aug. 28.—The police record of raids on gambling houses from June 1, 1911, to August 1, 1912, which was prepared at the command of Commissioner Waldo, has been completed. This list purports to give the names of owners of buildings in which gambling went on.

The publication of Commissioner Waldo's intention of publishing the report called forth a storm of protest from property owners all over the city.

Led to an Investigation.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 28.—Charles L. Smith was arrested at Perry, O., and brought to Goshen for the theft of a horse from Sam Thompson at Elkhart last spring. Smith deserted his wife. The horse was killed by a Lake Shore passenger train at Laporte, three months ago, and the disappearance of the driver after the accident led to an investigation and the disclosure that it was the stolen horse.

Created a Commotion.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 28.—A marriage that caused a commotion and regarding which every effort was made to keep it a secret, has just become known here. John Schoenherr, aged seventy-three, a wealthy woolen manufacturer of Philadelphia, was wedded last Saturday night to Julia Kleinbach, aged twenty-two, a domestic in his family. He lives in a mansion at 326 Allen Lane, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Ran Past Block Signal.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 28.—The entire blame for the wreck on the Northern Indiana railway in this city a week ago, which cost the lives of two employees of the company, was placed on O. L. Luck, one of the victims, by Coroner Martin, who has finished his inquest. Luck ran past a block signal with the work car he was in charge of and struck an interurban car on a single track.

Wounded Burglar Got Away.

Petersburg, Ind., Aug. 28.—Frank Parker, proprietor of the Parker restaurant, saw a masked man trying to break into the bakery. He obtained an automatic gun and shot at the burglar. The gun did not stop shooting until the sixteen rounds were discharged, and the burglar in the confusion made his escape, although badly wounded.

THOMAS T. MOORE

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Indiana Republican Ticket.

BRUTAL ATTACK ON AMERICAN CHARGE

Legation Officer at Havana Is the Victim.

Havana, Aug. 28.—Without warning, Hugh S. Gibson, the charge d'affaires of the American legation, last night was assaulted from behind and knocked down by a Cuban newspaper reporter who had been forbidden to enter the legation because he had lyingly misquoted Mr. Gibson. Secretary of Legation Bell promptly jumped in and knocked down Mr. Gibson's assailant, thus saving the charge d'affaires from serious or possibly fatal injury. Mr. Gibson, when he was assaulted, was entering the hotel at which he dines regularly. His assailant was arrested. This is the second cowardly attack on an American charge d'affaires, the other case being that of Mr. Tarler, in August, 1908.

Mr. Gibson has been obliged to sternly call down the Cuban government for not making payments of long overdue debts to American contractors, and only yesterday he secured the payment of over half a million to Hugh Reilly, the contractor who severed Cienfuegos. The members of the cabinet are very angry at Gibson on this account, and the Cuban newspapers have been abusing him and Minister Beaupre in the most scandalous fashion for the frequent admonitions President Gomez has received from Washington in regard to paying these claims.

Failed to Give Bond.

Shelbyville, Ind., Aug. 28.—Falling to give bond of $1,000 each, Frank Anderson and John Copple are in jail awaiting a preliminary hearing on the charge of assault and battery with intent to murder and rob Earl House of this city. The two men met House near the fair ground and beat him into insensibility. His cries for help aroused the people of the neighborhood, and they recognized Anderson and Copple, who were making a hasty retreat.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The government has installed, at a cost of $66,000, ten machines to wash and make fresh and crisp dirty paper money.

A story is current in London to the effect that the General Electric Company of America will shortly declare a dividend of 35 per cent.

B. R. Tillman, United States senator from South Carolina, has won out over both his opponents, having polled a majority of all votes cast in the state-wide primary.

The Progressives of the Eighth (Ind.) congressional district have nominated Edward C. Toner of the Anderson Herald as the new party's candidate for congress.

The republican mayor of Guarda, Portugal, arrested a monarchist priest, who drew a revolver and shot and fatally wounded the mayor. He fled, but was captured by a mob and lynched.

The British war office has refused an application for disused rifles for the new organization known as the "Citizen Volunteers of Ireland," which is now being formed in Ireland professedly along non-political lines.

The Roosevelt leaders in Pennsylvania will withdraw the Roosevelt electors of the ticket if the Taft managers will agree that the plan to nominate a Progressive state ticket in opposition to the Republican ticket be abandoned.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

Sept. 1, 1912.

(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.)

The Death of John the Baptist. Mark vi:14-29. (May be used as a temperance lesson.)

Golden Text—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life. Rev. ii:10.

(1.) Verse 14—Who was King Herod and how did the fame of Jesus affect him?

(2.) What other examples can you give of the results of an aroused conscience?

(3.) Verse 15—How do you account for the variety of opinions which the people had concerning Jesus?

(4.) Verse 16—What are the possibilities of conscience in tormenting bad men?

(5.) If a man's conscience is clear, no matter how startling an event may be, is he ever likely to be afraid? (See Prov. xiv:11.)

(6.) Verse 17—Why did Herod put John in prison?

(7.) Is a good man always under obligation to reprove evil even if he risks his life in doing it? Why?

(8.) Is it the duty of a good man to reprove all the bad men he knows? Why?

(9.) Did John's reproof of Herod have a good or a bad effect upon him? Give your reasons.

(10.) In what way should we follow Christ's command, "Neither cast ye your pearls before swine lest they trample them under their feet and turn again and rend you?"

(11.) Verse 18—Would you say, or not, and why, that notwithstanding the results, John's action was wise?

(12.) State the circumstances and say why it was wrong for Herod to marry his brother's wife.

(13.) Even if an act may not be wrong in itself, is it ever wise, or not, and why, for a person to do that which outrages the moral sense of the community?

(14.) Ought a man or a woman, even for just cause, ever seek a divorce for the purpose of marrying another? Why?

(15.) Verses 19-20—When a person is reproved for his sin and does not repent how does he generally feel toward the reprovor?

(16.) If Herod had such faith in the goodness of John why did he put him in prison?

(17.) How much virtue is there in doing some things that are right if the life in the main is wrong?

(18.) Verses 21-22—What is the general influence of having big dinners or suppers at anniversaries in the home?

(19.) It was a Greek custom after a banquet to have professional women dance in a mimetic and licentious way. What would be the effect of such dancing?

(20.) When a man is under the influence of wine and a licentious dance what would you say as to the goodness of his resolutions?

(21.) What is the influence today of drink and dancing?

(22.) Verses 23-29—Would Herod have given the order to have John beheaded if he had not been under the influence of passion? Why?

(23.) What were the steps that led up to the brutalizing of this woman's nature, which caused her to demand John's head on a charger? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.) Lesson for Sunday, Sept. 8, 1912. The Mission of the Twelve. Matt. ix:35-x:15; x:40-xi:1.

Special Legislation.

Irrespective of party attachments, every honest person ought to rejoice that the alien provisions which the Democratic house engrafted on many of the regular money bills of the government fell by the wayside in the end. All were killed by the President's veto. The army, the legislavictions and that he will stand by these convictions to the very last breath. Colonel Durbin makes no pretensions to extraordinary skill with the megaphone; there are others perhaps who may preach with a great deal more uncton and certainly there are others who are more profuse with their promises, but he is nevertheless in thorough accord with all that is genuinely progressive and will apply its principles toward giving the State a genuinely progressive administration. He will promise less perhaps, but he will actually do more in behalf of the people than any other candidate presented for that office. His candidacy will therefore appeal to the class of persons who do not prefer promise to performance.

The colonel is not the first man to say, "To hell with the constitution." Others have said that but they are not remembered as statesmen today.

If President Roosevelt had pursued the same course toward the trusts that President Taft has pursued, then before the end of his administration there would have been a law for the regulation of these combinations, and everybody who has studied the subject knows very well that President Taft would have enforced that law. Then the trust situation would have been in a far more healthful condition today.

In his address of acceptance, when President Taft used the following language he arose to the lofty height of the great occasion: "The faction seeks to force the party to violate a valuable and time-honored national tradition by entrusting the power of the presidency for more than two terms to one man and that one man, one whose recently avowed political views would have committed the party to radical proposals involving dangerous changes in our constitutional form of representative government and our independent judiciary."

It is well known among newspaper men that when a reporter seeks an interview with the colonel he prefers to have a witness present, and other things of this kind are known to men who have said very little about it except among themselves, but when he declares that his relations with the late Matthew Stanley Quay were always cordial and pleasant, then everyone who is acquainted with the situation knows very well that his memory on this particular point is not very accurate.

It is said that when Governor Wilson visited Democratic national headquarters the other day he found things in "chaos," thus suggesting the condition of mind that would prevail throughout the country if he should happen to be elected president.

The language of the prize ring may be very attractive to a certain class of minds, but there are those who do not see that it suggests any great degree of statesmanship on the part of the man who resorts to it to attract attention.

Congress is supposed to have spoken 18,000,000 words this session, but owing to the custom of printing unspoken speeches in the Record, the only man who has had to hear many of them is the typesetter.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

A $3,000 NOTE.

The Fairmount News says: Mr. Perkins donated to the campaign fund when Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate for President, Mr. Perkins also advanced $15,000 to the close friends of Mr. Taft in 1908, taking a note in payment of same. The note remains unpaid and the friends of Col. Roosevelt would like to see this little matter attended to." Mr. Perkins might be willing to accept on account the note for $3,000 given by Fred Landis to Dr. Good in payment of the funds used by the doctor to put the Bull Moose candidate for lieutenant governor in congress. If so, the Republican national committee could save something substantial in the deal as the Landis note has possessed value to this time only as an exhibit to political perfidy. Possibly there are gentlemen at Hartford City and even in Logansport who could help satisfy this Perkins obligation in the same manner.

But the work which that heroic president of 1877-81 did effectually needed to be repeated in 1912, and Mr. Taft met the demands of the situation. Between the days of Hayes and Taft no such avalanche of congressional "riders" appeared on appropriation bills as was seen in the session now closing. The Democratic House appears to have acted on the presumption that the power which was denied it during sixteen years of minority and obscurity might not come again for another decade and a half and it determined to make the most of its opportunity to hamper a Republican president. The lesson which has been taught that chamber in the past few months will probably not have to be repeated in the short session in the coming winter when another set of appropriation bills will have to be framed.

By Long Distance

Mrs. Adams beamed in conscious pride as she lifted the telephone receiver from the hook.

"Oh, I just know it's Jane," she murmured, ecstatically, to her caller, as she waited. "You'll excuse me, won't you? It won't take long, and we're going to call each other up every single week while she's at college. You see, this is her first week and I just know—"

"Yes, yes. Hello! Yes, this is Mrs. Adams. Oh, Jane, is that you. Your voice sounded just as natural. You poor child, you must be terribly lonely!" (Aside—"She's never been away before.")

"Oh, I'm so glad you like it!" (Aside—"She's so brave.")

"You're just getting settled? Haven't started your studies yet? Don't know what you'll take? That's right, dear; be sure you're comfortable first."

"Yes, darling, I'll be glad to make it. Chocolate, you say? Are you sure it won't be crushed in the express? Oh, very well. Just a moment, until I get a pencil and paper to put down the address."

(Aside—"She's asking me to send her a cake. They're to have a spread, and she promised to furnish the cake. Isn't that just like her, to offer to help right away? Jane is always so anxious to help others. You must excuse me—when I think of her away off there all alone, and no one to do things for her, it brings tears to my eyes! Oh, dear, where shall I find pencil and paper?")

"Here I am, Jane, dear. It's so hard to find writing material in this house. There! Yes, I have it. I'll make it to-night and take it right over to the express office. Yes, I'll make a few of those rocks, too, and—all right, some ginger nuts, too. Oh, I'll put in lots of good things, to surprise you."

"Is your bed soft, dear? Have you enough coverings? Oh, just a minute, dear, there goes the door bell." (Mrs. Adams hastens to the door, returning in about five minutes.)

"Hello, Jane! It was your Aunt May, in the auto. She wanted to take me out. No, I told her I didn't want to go. She said Jim is engaged to that Smith girl. Yes, it's a shame. I'll never get over being glad that you were a girl instead of a boy."

"So you like the girls? I'm so glad! One's friends count for so much when one's away from home!"

"Isn't it lovely to have the telephone! I've been counting, ever since you left, on talking with you! It almost seems as if you were at home, here!"

"Be careful, won't you, dear, not to get your feet wet, and to wear your warm coat, if it's the least bit damp. And don't study too hard. Ambition is all right, but don't overdo it, dear. You've got your whole life before you. What? You wish you had another party dress? Your pink is too plain? Well, I'll see if Mrs. Simmons can make another for you. Write me just how you want it made, and we'll have it there before the dance."

"You want to join a sorority? All right. But be careful to get in with the nicest girls, won't you? I trust you perfectly."

"Well, be good, and don't miss us too much—and write often—and call me up soon, won't you—whenver you're lonely? Goodbye."

"Why, central! It was not! The ideal Twenty minutes? Why, we talked only about three minutes. Five at the most. Well, could I help it if the doorbell rang, and I had to leave for a while? Why, I most assuredly did not have the wire when I was at the door! Very well, send the bill, and we shall see!" She thumped down the telephone receiver.

"The idea! Charging for twenty minutes, when I just said hello to Jane. I shall tell my husband! They think they can do anything they please, but he'll talk to them! Poor Jane! She's so lonely! And these selfish telephone people won't let me talk without charging such awful prices!"

Mania for Palaces.

The discovery of an intruder at Marlborough House, in London, is reminiscent of the adventures of "the boy Jones" in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign. In December, 1840, he gained access to Buckingham palace and secreted himself there for several days. He was detected by the princess' nurse and handed over to the police.

The privy council examined him, but did not think there was any cause for alarm, and he was sentenced to three months imprisonment as a rogue and vagabond. But no sooner was he at liberty than he made two other attempts to enter the palace. On the last occasion the magistrate gave him the chance of enlisting in the navy, where he was speedily cured of his mania for acquiring a royal domicile.

Sick and Tired of It.

Gracie was entertaining unexpected visitors while her mother dressed, and the ladies, during a lull in the rather strained conversation, fell to spelling out sentences about her.

"Rather a quaint child," said one, trusting to the child's implied ignorance of her letters.

"Yes," complained Gracie before the other lady could reply, "but she can't help it, and she's awfully tired of being called quaint."

I gave way in contradiction of my words and swayed forward. His arm went around me. I placed my hands, comrade-like, on his shoulders. I was trying to live up to that line in my hand.

"This can't go on," I said.

"What?"

"This seeing you, with a moon like that, and no one near and loving you." He kissed me before I could finish. "I must be sensible!"

"You love me—darling?"

"Oh!"

"Why must you be sensible?"

I thought for a while before I answered, meeting his eyes unwaveringly. It was hard to put the answer in words if he did not already understand the intangible everything that was the reason.

"Do you remember that I'm in a very serious position?" I asked him. "I've been accused of—of being a thief, not suspected, but actually accused! Perhaps tomorrow I shall be arrested. That means—means handcuffs, doesn't it? And jail? It's sure to be in the newspapers. Arrests are a matter of public record, aren't they? Then I will have to vindicate myself! And how? And if I do, the smudge will always be there, my name in the records of the police. Do you suppose I am going to let you expose yourself as my champion? Everybody will believe it, except perhaps your mother, and Laura, and—and yourself. Miss Agazziz believes I'm a thief!"

"Loulie, will you marry me tonight—now? Give me the right to protect you?"

"No," I answered promptly.

"It's all darned foolishness, Natalie accusing you. She acted on an impulse. She will be ashamed of herself when she's had time to think it over."

"She didn't act on an impulse; she isn't that kind. She's sure she's right. Do you remember that I was on the balcony at the time she thinks her emerald bracelet was stolen?"

"Do you know that before you came she suspected Winthrop?" he asked.

"Yes, I know."

"It's all a lot of tommy-rot, her suspicions. I believe she loses things. No one else has had anything stolen. If we have a thief here he wouldn't stop at one jewel, where there are so many. If she's in earnest about being robbed, why doesn't she go to the police and say so?"

"O-o-h! The police!" I couldn't resist imitating her. "Well, perhaps she's going to the police now. That—that's what I must be prepared for. She hasn't had time to do anything yet but tell your mother. She won't gossip, Hap; she's true blue, but of course she will do something decisive after—after accusing me. Sure, your mother will send me away. You see I can't go until she sends me—it's a contract. Then—I dare not think beyond that! Whatever comes I must face it, with Jo to help me."

"And me—don't leave me out, Loulie. You're going to marry me. It's the best answer I know to any suspicions."

"I'm not going to marry you, Hap. I've tried to make you see the reason—the big reason—and there are a thousand little ones. Don't you suppose everybody knows about me? That I am a salaried servant? No."

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich, even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh faded hair, when a simple, harmless remedy will bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin.

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED
Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic cream called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, caused a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today. Give it a fair trial, and get your money back if you are not satisfied.

there is no use trying to disguise it. Everybody knows my position; I'm not allowed to forget it. There's a great deal of assurance in the way Natalie indicates a vacant chair when she wants me to fill in at bridge. It rather amuses me. Mrs. Sargent sent me for golf balls the other day, actually. Yes, I know, everybody is pretty decent since Laura kicked up a row about that episode at Mrs. Dykeman's, but it only served to make it more conspicuous that Mrs. Dykeman didn't consider me a guest; I was only borrowed for the occasion. Please don't abuse anybody. Nothing has been awkward as I expected it to be. Your mother has been heavenly to me, and society has taken to me rather kindly, but marry you!—I Gracious!

I heard the steady beat of a motorboat and I paused to listen. Hap heard it, too. It wasn't anything unusual, except the insistent beat of the engine was familiar to me. It must have been making twenty miles an hour.

"That's Winthrop, isn't it?" Hap asked.

"I think so. He's coming pretty fast, isn't he? He doesn't always race like that."

We could only see a searchlight faintly, for the moon was so bright. It was coming toward us steadily. When almost opposite our landing the boat swerved and came directly head on. It stopped with a snort and a puff, the searchlight was snapped out, and some one landed, tied up the boat and straightened up against the moonlight.

"Hello, Winthrop!" Hap called.

"Hello, old man," Winthrop answered. He came toward us. "Is it Miss Codman? Did you see me coming? I can run away from anybody on this shore. Well!" He dropped down on the sand, took off his cap and turned his face to the breeze.

"Were you running away from anybody?" I asked.

"Yes, I think I was. Funny thing happened. I was away up somewhere along the beach there in front of Hemmingway's or that old General

"Look, Boys, There is Blood on His Hand."

al What's-His-Name? Schuyler, when my carburetor balked a bit. I shut her off and started to see what the trouble was. I must have drifted in shore, for the first thing I knew three men ran down the beach, yelled 'Hands up!' and I was rather startled when I saw by the moonlight that they meant me."

"A hold-up!" Hap ejaculated.

"Why, I didn't have anything to steal," Winthrop laughed. "But I decided I didn't want to put them to the trouble of finding that out. If I had had anything but my bare hands and a monkey wrench I might have given them a turn; instead, I gave them engine full power and came away from that place. One of the fools shot at me—got me in the sleeve."

"Shot you?" I cried.

"Just my sleeve," he answered. "Made a hole in it. Daring! a thing like that. It's bright as day and early, too—not ten o'clock. Well, it's an interesting thing to be shot at."

He sat up suddenly. Another searchlight swept the water and another boat came toward us at full power.

"We have grand-stand seats tonight," Hap remarked flippantly.

The other boat behaved curiously. It made for the shore while still above us and slowed up at all the landings as it came to them. We watched it. At our landing the boat stopped, the occupants talked excitedly for a while, and one by one came ashore. There were three of them.

"Hi, there," called Hap. "What do you want?"

"We want you," a heavy voice answered. They came toward us with assurance.

Hap settled his shoulders and I felt sorry for somebody. Winthrop arose.

"What's the trouble?" he asked quietly.

"This young fellow"—indicating Hap—"has just robbed a house and shot General Schuyler. I'm here to arrest him."

"Rats!" Winthrop said. "That's Mr. Hazard. He has been on the beach here. That's my boat."

"Then you are the man we want. Look boys, there is blood on his hand. No monkey business now, young fellow. I'm an officer of the law. Just oblige me by holding out your hands."

Something gleamed, snapped. I put my hands over my eyes.

"Are you afraid to go back to the house alone, Loulie?" Hap asked quietly.

I shook my head, and went.

CHAPTER XV.

The Box of Jewels.

I did not look back as I sped across the lawn, skirted the tennis courts, and reached my room the way I had come. I heard the sputter of the motorboats as they moved away, mingling with laughter from the drawing-room below.

I was in my room, sick with the fear of impending disaster, while the two boats were being tied up at Winthrop's landing. Five minutes later the lights were snapped on in Winthrop's big living-room.

A STITCH IN TIME

Rushville People Should Not Neglect Their Kidneys.

No kidney ailments are unimportant. Don't overlook the slightest backache or urinary irregularity. Nature may be warning you of approaching dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease. Kidney disease is seldom fatal if treated in time, but neglect may pave the way. Don't neglect a lame or aching back another day. Don't ignore dizzy spells, irregular or discolored urine, headaches, weariness or depression. If you feel you need kidney help begin using the reliable, time-tried remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. For 50 years, Doan's have been found effective. Endorsed by Rushville people.

Mrs. L. B. Leeds, 904 W. Second street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they are just fine. I was subject to dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak, causing backache. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family with good results, so I took them. They promptly cured me and I have not been bothered since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

"Gentlemen, be seated," Hap remarked flippantly.

"Cut out the comedy, young fellow," commanded the heavy voice as Jim and the other detective snickered.

The heavy voice was accompanied by a heavy mustache, a heavy number twelve boot, and a heavy derby hat. A half-smoked, fat, black cigar was rammed in his teeth, and he chewed on it as he talked. The other two detectives called him Chief.

Hap dug his hands into his pockets and turned away to smile.

"What can I do for you, gentlemen?" Winthrop asked.

"Just hand over the sparks," the chief answered, "and be quick about it, too."

"I have none," Winthrop told him. "Will you please unfasten these things"—meaning the handcuffs—"while I get my arm dressed?" He wiped the blood from his fingers.

"I guess not," flamed the chief. "You shot General Schuyler; that blood is evidence."

"You fool, this is my own blood," Winthrop said quietly. "It's running down my arm."

"Search him," directed the chief.

The other two detectives fell upon Winthrop, slapping him gently first in search of a weapon, then poking fingers deftly into pockets like ferrets after a rat. They straightened up empty-handed.

"Satisfied?" Winthrop smiled.

"You had 'em," insisted the chief. "You've got 'em, unless"—he smashed a big fist into the palm of a coarse hand—"unless you gave 'em to this young fellow."

"Hands off me," Hap said, "or arrest me first. And I dare you to arrest me!"

The chief puffed, then swallowed hard.

"Feel him over," he directed.

"Not until you arrest me."

"Well, if you ain't got 'em," demanded the chief suspiciously, "why do you object to being searched?"

"General principles," Hap retorted with a grin. "I have no objection to being arrested. Go to it!" He held out his hands invitingly. "Now, suppose you take those handcuffs off Mr. Abbott and we'll attend to that wound before we do anything else."

"Get a basin of water," the chief blustered, "and bring it here. We'll see where that blood come from."

"Get a basin, Hap," Winthrop requested.

Hap went out, returning immediately with water and bandages. The wound was trivial. The chief looked at it and grunted. The bullet had just nipped the flesh, but Winthrop was full-blooded. Hap washed it and bound it up, while the chief's puffy eyes were fixed on space, and he sat forward in his chair, with a hand on either knee. It was his attitude when in deep thought. He clapped his knees finally.

To be continued.

There never was at time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. ## THE SITUATION GROWS WORSE

Mexican Conditions Well Nigh Unendurable.

INTERVENTION IS PROBABLE

United States Government is Viewing With No Small Degree of Concern the Situation as It Has Developed in the South of Mexico, Where the Madero Government Practically Has Relinquished the Reins to Anarchy.

Washington, Aug. 28.—There have been received here reports from south Mexico so alarming as to make the danger of American intervention in that country greater than ever before. So serious has the situation appeared to President Taft that in discussions with members of the cabinet and others recently he has expressed the gravest fears of necessity for far more drastic action on the part of the United States than has yet been taken in Mexico.

It is stated that while the operations of General Orozco and his men in northern Mexico, near the United States border, are exasperating to a degree and injurious to American interests, the most serious phase of the situation lies in the conditions existing in southern Mexico. In the southern states Zapata is the recognized rebel leader. His bands have been operating continually for many months and have so got the upper hand in the southern states that authority of the federal government is exercised but fitfully and has almost disappeared.

Little that has been going on in these states has reached the outside world. Consequently it has been generally believed that conditions in the south of Mexico were greatly improved and that the situation was again approaching the normal. The greater publicity given the movements of General Orozco and his chieftains has concentrated attention upon his forces as the principal disturbing element in Mexico.

The contrary, however, is true. Robbery and pillaging are going on constantly in the southern states, with practically nothing done to put a stop to it. Cruelties of the most fiendish nature are being practiced by the outlaws and the government forces alike. The most horrible tales are being told of butchery and mutilations and tortures, few of which are reaching the general public, either in Mexico or the United States. The entire southern half of Mexico, it is stated, is falling into a state of chaos and anarchy far worse than anything that has occurred in the northern part of the republic.

The blame for the situation is laid chiefly at the door of the Mexican government. Slaps of omission upon the part of the Madero administration are said to be the chief cause of the degeneration of the authority of the national government. After nearly two years of turmoil, the Mexican officials are said to be showing a coldness and indifference to the situation in which the government is placed which has proved shocking and amazing to all Americans, officials and private citizens alike. The policy of the Madero government in the south of Mexico is declared to be neither aggressive nor energetic. It is charged that no longer does the Mexican government take the trouble to promise to bestir itself, that it has grown so callous to complaints as almost totally to disregard them.

It is this inaction on the part of the government which is causing the concern in the Washington administration. In the event of the further degeneration of the federal authority there will be absolutely nobody to which the United States can look for affording protection to the life and property of its citizens, and no one who can be held responsible for anything that is done. If there is no one trying to exert the federal authority in the disordered regions, it is considered that the situation will be much more menacing from the United States point of view than would be the case if the established government were doing its utmost to preserve order, even though failing in its efforts. It is these considerations which have now caused President Taft to take a much graver view of the situation than has been commonly supposed.

WILLIAM H. LEWIS
 Negro Who Won Contest in American Bar Association.

LAWYERS SQUABBLE OVER NEGRO'S SEAT

Lewis Won Out in Bar Association Contest.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—Upon arrival here to attend the American Bar Association's thirty-fifth annual meeting, Attorney General George W. Wickersham announced that he denied the right of the association, after it has once seated a member, to oust him on the ground that it has been discovered that he is a negro.

Mr. Wickersham came to defend the title of William H. Lewis to a seat in the association. Lewis is an assistant to the attorney general. His membership was revoked by the executive committee on the charge that the committee elected him without knowing he was a negro. The executive committee, headed by S. S. Gregory, Chicago, president of the association, prepared a special report declaring it against the association's policy to admit negro members and saying Lewis and two others were seated on recommendations of local councils without the fact that they were negroes being made generally known.

The bar association refused to draw a color line in its membership when the case of Lewis came before the convention. The two other negroes, Butler R. Wilson of Boston and William R. Morris of Minneapolis, also remained members of the association. The association dodged the color-line question, in that it passed a compromise resolution requiring local organizations to state in the future whether or not a candidate for membership was a negro. This was freely admitted to be a compromise.

Taft's Travels.
 Beverly, Mass., Aug. 28.—President Taft's plans for a quiet vacation were broken into today when he started on a flying trip to Columbus, O., where he will take part in a centennial celebration tomorrow and will also visit the Ohio state fair. He will leave Columbus tomorrow evening, arriving here Saturday morning.

Roosevelt Begins Campaign.
 Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Colonel Roosevelt will leave tonight to stump the state of Vermont, beginning there an almost unbroken campaign extending over six weeks.

Makes Death Doubly Sure.
 To make doubly sure of death, Max B. Bock, an optician having an office at 106 Fulton street, Manhattan, sent a bullet into his brain after preparing to end his life by inhaling gas at his home, 326 Goldfield street, Hoboken. He had been in poor health for some time.

Bock's wife and children went out in the afternoon, and as soon as they had gone the man went into the bathroom, fastened one end of a tube to a gas jet, and, lying down in the bathtub, placed the other end in his mouth. Then he fired a bullet from a revolver into his right temple, dying instantly.

Time for Recreation.
 "Old at forty is not conservation, it is brutality," declared Dr. John B. Andrews of New York. Dr. Andrews called forcible attention to the seven-day-a-week workers of the country, declaring it the duty of every factory inspector to work to the end that every worker in the United States shall be able to obtain one day a week in which to enjoy home life, which we have been taught to regard as the foundation of our social system.

Home Course In Road Making

VII.—Highway Culverts and Bridges.

By LOGAN WALLER PAGE,
 Director Office of Public Roads,
 United States Department of Agriculture

Copyright by American Press Association, 1912.

CULVERTS and bridges are constructed for a twofold purpose. In the first place, they are required to provide the necessary drainage for the road and, in the second place, to furnish a suitable crossing for traffic over waterways. A large percentage of the highway culverts and bridges in this country were built of wood in the first instance, and in later years many of the smaller culverts have been rebuilt with some kind of pipe, either of terra cotta, cast iron or more recently of corrugated metal. It is impracticable in a short paper to discuss the various forms of pipe culverts. They are purchased in the open market, and the road official uses his judgment about the size of pipe that should be laid to serve the requirements of the location in question.

The following principles should, however, be borne in mind: All pipe culverts should be laid deep enough so that the pipe will not be injured by the traffic passing over it, and head walls should in all cases be built at each end of the culverts to prevent them from being washed out. The maximum fill to be allowed over a clay pipe culvert should be at least three feet. The objection to pipe culverts is that they become easily clogged and are thus made useless. Clay pipe culverts are easily broken unless they are well laid and well protected.

The most simple and natural form of bridge consists of timbers laid across the stream or opening which is to be passed over and covered with planks to form the roadway. Walls should be built to support each end of the timbers, and these are called abutments. The width of the opening which they cross is termed the span. The timbers themselves are called stringers, and the planks are usually referred to as the flooring.

The size of the stringers required increases with the span and the distance apart, center to center, that they are laid. For example, a 2 inch by 6 inch stringer will do for a two foot span, while a 6 inch by 10 inch or 6 inch by 12 inch stringer is required for a twenty foot span. The distance apart that the stringers are required to be laid varies with the thickness of the plank flooring and the amount of traffic.

The weight of the materials in the bridge is commonly referred to as the dead load. The additional load which the bridge is designed to carry is known as the live load and consists of animals, wagons or motor vehicles or pedestrians. A crowd of people standing close together on a bridge is usually estimated at about 100 pounds per square foot of floor space.

The strength of the bridge depends upon the kind of timber used, the dimensions of the timber, the amount used and its location, and also very largely upon the span of the bridge. For example, assuming a loaded wagon carrying 500 pounds per wheel, a yellow pine board one inch thick and eight inches wide would require stringers to support it about every thirteen inches apart to carry the load safely, while a plank of the same width and two inches thick would require stringers three feet apart, and a three inch plank would require stringers about every four feet apart. These figures are based upon the assumption that yellow pine, Douglas fir or a good quality of oak would be used. If such timbers as white pine, hemlock or spruce are used, then stringers would be required about every eight inches for a one inch board, every two and one-half feet for a two inch plank and every three feet for a three inch plank.

The following table gives the approximate sizes of stringers required for the different spans:

Span in feet	Size of yellow pine stringers in inches	Size of white pine stringers in inches	Span in feet	Size of yellow pine stringers in inches	Size of white pine stringers in inches
2	2x6	2x6	8	8x8	8x8
4	2x6	2x6	10	8x8	8x10
6	2x6	2x6	12	8x8	8x10
8	2x6	2x6	14	8x8	8x10
10	2x6	2x6	16	8x8	8x10
12	2x6	2x6	18	8x8	8x10
14	2x6	2x6	20	8x8	8x10
16	2x6	2x6	22	8x8	8x10
18	2x6	2x6	24	8x8	8x10
20	2x6	2x6	26	8x8	8x10
22	2x6	2x6	28	8x8	8x10
24	2x6	2x6	30	8x8	8x10

In the above table round timbers or logs may be substituted for the stringers, in which case the diameter of the log should be about one and one-eighth times the largest dimension of the stringer as given.

Fig. 2 illustrates two methods by which the simple beam or girder may be strengthened and states the corresponding loads that will be carried safely. That is, the simple beam 12 inches by 12 inches square and 24 feet between points of support will carry safely a concentrated load of one and one-half tons at its center, while if the same beam be made into a King post beam by passing underneath the beam a one inch steel rod, which is made fast at either end of the beam, and inserting a single post under the load at the center of the beam, then such a beam will carry about two and three-quarter times as much, or a load of three and three-quarter tons, safely, while if the same beam be built into a King truss beam the load concentrated at the center may then be increased to nine tons.

The best culverts and smaller bridges are built of re-enforced concrete. The cost is greater than for wooden or pipe constructions in the first instance, but if well built there should be no further cost for repairs. That is, the first cost is the last cost, while durability and safety are secured from the outset.

Good materials, consisting of crushed stone or gravel, sand and portland cement and water are required for concrete. Deformed steel rods imbedded in the concrete are used for strengthening the cover spans. The mixing of these materials into concrete and placing it in the forms are extremely simple matters after they are once well understood, but nevertheless should not be undertaken by one who is unfamiliar with the use of concrete.

There are three general kinds of concrete culverts, which are known as the concrete box type. They are built for the smaller sizes up to such as have an opening about four feet by six feet wide. For sizes above that the floor is usually left out where it is not needed to protect the foundation, or paving may be substituted for it. The floor and side walls are constructed of concrete with or without metal re-enforcement, usually without such re-enforcements. The proportions of concrete used for the floor and side walls are usually, 1, 3, 6—that is, one part by measure of portland cement, three parts by measure of sand and six parts by measure of crushed stone or gravel. For spans above ten or twelve feet the cover needs to be strengthened with concrete beams. This type is known as the concrete T beam from its resemblance to the capital letter. They are placed adjacent to each other, the distance from center to center depending upon the load which the bridge is expected to carry.

The best type of concrete culverts for spans from ten feet up to thirty feet is the steel I beam incased in concrete, as shown in Fig. 1. Here the concrete floor is designed to carry the load across the span from one I beam to another, while the steel I beams carry the load from one abutment to the other. It often happens that the culverts are built on yielding foundations and that the abutments sometimes settle, causing cracks that would be dangerous in some types of culverts, but it is the ability of the steel I beam type to withstand such conditions as these just mentioned that makes it the best type to build. The I beams are incased in concrete to protect them from rusting. Sometimes they are simply painted or more often not painted at all, and what would be a permanent bridge is allowed to rust out for lack of proper care.

For details in regard to the methods of designing and building concrete bridges attention is called to bulletin No. 33, "Highway Bridges and Culverts," issued by the office of public roads, United States department of agriculture.

No road can be called a good road that is dotted with broken, wornout and unsafe wooden culverts and bridges, such as are encountered on many of our highways at the present time. Such bridges are a menace to our traveling public and are expensive to maintain. The price of timber is advancing, and the increasing traffic demands safer bridges and culverts. Re-enforced concrete for this class of work appears to form the best solution of this problem. Bridge construction is eminently the work for the engineer, and his services should in all cases be secured.

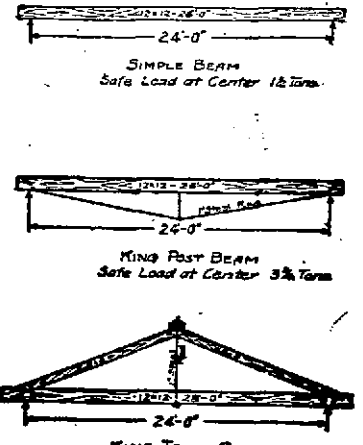

FIG. 2.—COMPARATIVE TYPES AND LOADS FOR WOODEN BEAMS.

The Road Contract System.
 There are three systems of road maintenance in use in this country—viz, the contract system, the labor tax, or personal service system, and the system which provides men permanently employed to look after particular sections of road. The contract system has been used to some extent in various states, but it has never been found entirely satisfactory. The general rule, the amount paid for this work is small, and each year's service is regarded as a new contract. The roads have become worse rather than better.

TUBERCULOSIS DAY IN OCTOBER

Churches and Religious Societies Will be Asked to Observe Last Sunday in Month.

TO PREVENT WHITE PLAGUE

Ten Per cent of Deaths Among the Church Members is Due to This Disease.

Churches and religious societies in this city will be urged to give special attention to the prevention of tuberculosis on Sunday, October 27, or on some day during the week preceding or the week following that date. This season has been set apart and designated as the Third National Tuberculosis day by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which makes this announcement.

Tuberculosis day was originally set on April 28, but was postponed because of a conflict with Conservation Sunday of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which was held on that date. The observance of Tuberculosis day in the fall this year will be utilized by anti-tuberculosis workers not only for the general education of churchgoers on consumption, but also for the purpose of interesting them in the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals.

Every one of the 600 and more anti-tuberculosis associations allied with the National Association will be urged to promote Tuberculosis day in their respective communities. While last year over 50,000 churches observed this occasion, it is expected this year that this number will be doubled. Millions of circulars and other forms of literature will be distributed. The support of every religious denomination will be asked for.

That Tuberculosis is a serious problem among church congregations is evidenced by statistics which the National Association gathered last year, which shows that ten per cent of all deaths among church members are caused by tuberculosis. Based on these figures and on the mortality statistics of the Census bureau, over 52,000 of the 33,000,000 communicants in churches in the United States die from tuberculosis every year. This figure assumes that the death rate of 1:60 per 1000 population in the registration area applies to all churchgoers when as a matter of fact the rate would probably be higher.

SUIT TO RECTIFY MISTAKE FILED

Cattlemen Claim They Paid Too Much Money and Ask That it be Refunded.

NEW "RINKLE" IN LOCAL COURT

A rather unusual suit which was filed today attracted the attention of local court officials. The suit was filed by Kiplinger and Williams, representing Stephen T. Allen and Abraham L. Hebble against James A. Linville, demanding $175 on a mistake.

The plaintiffs are stock dealers and allege they paid the defendant $164.95 too much money for some cattle and state that although the defendant was aware of the mistake he refused to give back the money. They allege to have given him $1324.23 instead of $1277, which he had coming on the sale. For the mistake of $164.95 the complaint asks for $175.

BOARD DEMANDS $3,000 DAMAGES

County Commissioners Claim Road Builder Failed to Keep Contract on Leisure Pike.

SURETY COMPANY ALSO NAMED

The board of Commissioners has brought suit against James F. Pierce and the Bankers Surety Company on a contract, demanding $3000. The suit is the outgrowth of the first attempt to build the Charles Leisure at road.

In 1910 James F. Pierce was given the contract to build the road, the price being $9700. His bid was the lowest. The complaint states that the Bankers Surety Company of Cleveland went on his bond for $20,000 and was approved by the commissioners. The contract stated that Pierce was to complete the road by December 1, 1911.

It is alleged that he failed to complete the work and abandoned the contract. By reason of this the commissioners were forced to re-advertise at an additional expense. The board claims that he was to pay $10 per day as liquidated damages for each day after December 1, 1911 that the road was not complete.

The funeral services of Frank Walker were held this afternoon in the Main Street Christian church. Burial took place in East Hill cemetery in charge of the Odd Fellows lodge.

MAIL AS USUAL THROUGH BOXES

will be sorted out at the office of dispatch and on the railway mail trains in order to simplify the work of distributing it in the postoffices on Sunday.

"As practically all business houses are now closed on Sunday they do not object to the plan which has been in force for a year, of holding their mail until Monday morning, realizing the benefit thus conferred on postal employees who are thereby relieved from Sunday labor.

"In order to give the new provision as liberal a construction as possible, postmasters will be instructed on application to have their employees sort out in emergency cases on Sunday letters of special importance. This will supplement the present privilege of having all mail delivered on Sunday that carries a special delivery stamp.

"By the proposed changes in the method of putting up mail in the offices of origin and in its handling on the railway mail trains it is believed that a satisfactory distribution can be made in postoffices on Sunday with far less work than is now required. Thus the law can be made to confer great benefits on postal employees without inconvenience to the public."

Wail of the Bull Moose

I chanced to meet the Big Bull Moose. "Tell me," I said, "your true excuse for bolting from your party horde."

"Fraud! Fraud!" he snorted. "Fraud! Fraud! Fraud!"

"Big Moose," I said, "the nation waits To learn your views on tariff rates; Are you for schedule K's repeal?"

"Fraud! Fraud!" he yelled. "Thou shalt not steal!"

"If to the White House you should go," I urged, "the voters want to know Just what your policies would be."

"Thieves! Thieves!" he cried. "All thieves but me!"

"Tell me," I begged "in terms exact— Would you uphold the Sherman act Or wipe it from the statute books?"

He shrieked: "They swindled me! They're crooks!"

"Then tell me what your plan would be To give us a safer currency." In vain my questioning I plied; "They're frauds! They're robbers!" still he cried.

"Big Moose," I said "might I refer To trusts like Steel and Harvester? Should they be favored or outlawed?"

He answered naught but "Fraud! Fraud! Fraud!"

"Would you be willing to explain Whence comes the cash for your campaign? Some curious rumors are abroad."

But still he bellowed, "Fraud! Fraud! Fraud!"

Just as the dogs have barked "Bow-wow!" Since time began, and cats said "Meow!"

As geese have hissed and crows have cawed.

So now the Moose cries "Fraud! Fraud! Fraud!"

What Makes a Nation.

I believe there is no permanent greatness to a nation except it be based upon morality. I do not care for military greatness or military renown. I care for the condition of the people among whom I live. Crowns, coronets, mitres, military display, the pomp of war, wide colonies and a huge empire are, in my view, all trifles, light as air, and not worth considering, unless with them you can have a fair share of comfort, contentment and happiness among the great body of the people. Palaces, baronial castles, great halls, stately mansions do not make a nation. The nation in every country dwells in the cottage; and unless the light of your constitution can shine there, unless the beauty of your legislation and the excellence of your statesmanship are impressed there on the feelings and condition of the people, rely upon it you have yet to learn the duties of government.—John Bright.

GAME SUNDAY WILL BE NOVEL SIGHT

All Members of Silent Stars Are Deaf Mutes and Also Some Ball Players.

EARL HALTERMAN WILL PITCH

The ball game Sunday between the locals and the Silent Stars of Indianapolis is attracting considerable attention—not alone because of the novelty of a deaf mute team but because a good game is expected. The Silent Stars is one of the best teams traveling out of Indianapolis and a fast game is assured. Every member of the Silent Stars is a deaf mute and this sight alone should attract a crowd.

Monday, Labor Day, the locals will play Will McGuire's Central avenue team of Indianapolis. McGuire has a fast bunch and the double header should be interesting. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock and the second will start immediately after the conclusion of the first. "Chick" Avery will attempt to pitch both games of the double header. Earl Halterman, the sensational southpaw will pitch the game Sunday. This will be the first opportunity local fans will have had this year of seeing Halterman perform.

LINGERED ALWAYS IN MEMORY

Frenchman Long Retained Vivid Recollection of the Face of His Great Emperor.

The Journal Medical de Bruxelles printed, some time ago, an interesting account by Dr. Max Billard of the exhumation of the body of Napoleon in 1840. Dr. Billard said that the remains were in a state of almost perfect preservation. The head of the body rested upon a pillow, the thin lips were slightly parted, and under the upper one could be seen three extremely white teeth. At that time the body was in four coffins, one of lead, two of mahogany, and one of tin plate. It is now in five coffins, two of lead, one of tin, one of mahogany, and one of ebony. It was once the custom to expose the face of the conqueror on the anniversary of his birth, but the practice was discontinued. Jean Rich-pin, the poet, was among those who saw it, and in a lecture he said that the governor of the Invalides took him and his father into the crypt. His father took him in his arms, raised him, and he saw the emperor. "I was eleven years old. What is seen at that age makes a deep impression and nothing can remove from my brain that extraordinary image—the eyes closed, the beard slightly grained, on which spread some yellow spots which seemed a bronze. When there mingle in my memory that face of wax which I have seen and those eyes which I have seen I see the emperor truly as if I had known him."

Newark Baker, After Experience With Auto, Decides That He Will Stick to the Horse.

"A horse for mine," said the prosperous baker. "I've tried an automobile for a month, and if I don't get rid of it pretty soon I'll go broke. Still, it only cost me $15 today, so I ought not to complain."

His tale of trouble is too long to tell in less than an entire page of this type, says the Newark News. Prominent among its details are:

The rupture of a delivery boy while cranking the engine, resulting in a hospital operation and a bill of $150.

The mobbing of another boy by angry aliens and his arrest on a charge of running over a child; also the suing by the child's parents for $5,000 damages and the settling of the case out of court for $65, although it was shown that the child had not been hurt in the least; in fact, had not been touched.

The colliding of the auto with a wagon loaded with tombstones, the total wrecking of the machine thereby, and the skinning up of the chauffeur, the stonecutter's horses and the teamster.

"When I sold my horse and bought the automobile," said the baker, "I neglected to take into account the dumbness of delivery boys. I did not know then, as I do now, how much I owed to the intelligence of my horse."
